Repayment Plan Options:

The U.S. Department of Education uses several loan servicers to handle the billing and other services on loans for the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program. There are several repayment plan options that are designed to meet your needs. The amount you pay and the length of time to repay your loans will vary depending on the repayment plan you choose. Below are the repayment plan options that are available through your loan servicer.

A standard repayment plan has a fixed monthly repayment amount for a fixed period of up to 10 years.

An extended repayment plan has a lower fixed monthly payment amount, and loan repayment can be extended beyond the usual 10 years for up to 25 years.

A graduated repayment plan usually begins with lower monthly payments that increase every two years. Payments are made for up to 10 years.

Income-based repayment (IBR) plan is for student loan debt that is high relative to your income. Income-based repayment (IBR) is designed to reduce monthly payments to assist with making your student loan debt manageable. The monthly payments will never be more than the 10-year standard repayment amount and the monthly payments can be made over a period of 25 years.

Revised Pay As You Earn (REPAYE) plan helps keep your monthly student loan payments affordable. The monthly payments are recalculated each year and are based on your updated income and family size. Any outstanding balance on your loan will be forgiven if you haven't repaid your loan in full after 20-25 years.

Pay As You Earn (PAYE) plan helps keep your monthly student loan payments affordable. You must be a new borrower on or after October 1, 2007, and must have received a disbursement of a Direct Loan on or after October 1, 2011. The monthly payments are recalculated each year and are based on your updated income and family size. Any outstanding balance on your loan will be forgiven if you haven't repaid your loan in full after 25 years.

Income-contingent repayment (ICR) plan is based on your adjusted gross income, family size, and the total amount of your Direct Loans for up to 25 years. This plan is designed for borrowers who need to make lower payments, but do not qualify for the IBR or Pay as You Earn plans.

Income-sensitive repayment (ISR) plan is based on your annual income and the total amount of your Direct Loans for up to 10 years. The payments change as your income changes. Each lender's formula for determining the monthly payment under this plan can vary.

National Student Loan Data System

The National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) is the U.S. Department of Education's (ED's) central database for student aid. NSLDS receives data from schools, guaranty agencies, the Direct Loan program, and other Department of ED programs. NSLDS Student Access provides a centralized, integrated view of Title IV loans and grants so that recipients of Title IV Aid can access and inquire about their Title IV loans and/or grant data.

Loan Consolidation

Students who have previously borrowed FFELP student loans through a lending institution and who are now borrowing a Federal Direct Loan have the option to consolidate all of their student loans into one Federal Direct Consolidation Loan. This will help the borrower avoid the situation of owing two separate loans to two different lenders. Borrowers who are interested in consolidation of all their student loans into one Consolidation Loan can contact the U.S. Department of Education for more information at <https://studentloans.gov>.
